

August 10, 2007

Private Sector Emergency Responder Information Letter

The Center for Domestic Preparedness (CDP), located in Anniston, AL currently offers over thirty courses in resident training. Private sector emergency responders are eligible to attend these training opportunities based on seat availability. To obtain further information on the courses, facilities, and dates please visit our website at <http://cdp.dhs.gov>

All private sector responders attending resident training are responsible for funding their own transportation costs to/from the CDP. All private sector responders will be charged $25.00 per day for lodging. All private sector responders are responsible for funding meals based on the current rate. For further meal rate information, please contact Chris Caputo at caputoc@cdpemail.dhs.gov or 866-22139548.

The Center for Domestic Preparedness is a federally funded training center; therefore, the training is delivered at no cost to the jurisdiction. Jurisdictions are responsible for funding any overtime or replacement costs incurred as a result of personnel attending training.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Richard L. Dickson".

Richard L. Dickson
Assistant Director, Student Services